

Professor John Axford DSc MD FRCP

John Axford is Professor of Clinical Rheumatology and Director of the Sir Joseph Hotung Centre for Musculoskeletal Disorders. The Hotung Centre is the focus for all musculoskeletal academic activity within St George's University of London and St George's Hospital. Professor Axford directs the provision of clinical and basic science research, clinical care and both undergraduate and postgraduate education.

Professor Axford joined St George's in 1990 and was appointed Chair in Clinical Rheumatology in 2005. Professor Axford is an elected member of the Senate and Council at St George's and is also an elected member of Council at the RSM. He is a Past-President of the Clinical Immunology & Allergy Section of the RSM.