Annual student and trainee ophthalmic conference
Poster presentation prize 2017

The annual student and trainee ophthalmic conference aims to increase awareness of ophthalmology as a specialty. It intends on giving advice to those who want to pursue a career in ophthalmology specialty training, from those involved in recruitment and to allow attendees to improve practical skills relevant to ophthalmology.

The annual student and trainee ophthalmic conference committee are welcoming abstract submissions for the poster prize presentation in any of the following categories:
A. Case presentations and/or reviews
B. Audits
C. Original research

All abstract entries should be submitted to the following email address: astoc@buos.co.uk.
The submission deadline is the 10th November 2017.
Those shortlisted abstracts will be invited to prepare a poster to present at the ASTOC 2017 and compete for the prizes. The 250 word abstract should be submitted using this format:
1. Presentation Category
2. Title
3. Authors (Presenter should be listed as primary author)
4. Affiliations (E.g. University of Edinburgh or Moorfields Eye Hospital)
5. Body of abstract
   A. Abstracts for case reports should contain:
      - Background
      - Case report
      - Conclusion
   B. Abstracts for reviews should depict a summary of the article
   C. Abstracts for original research should contain:
      - Background
      - Aims and objectives
      - Methods
      - Results
      - Conclusion

Please note that it is not necessary to have had clinical exposure to ophthalmology to enter this competition, however the work must not be older than one year and no published work will be accepted.
